

MAF Dalkia Showcases Guaranteed Energy Savings and Innovative offerings at WETEX

Dubai, April, 21, 2015: MAF Dalkia, one of the leading regional service providers of multi-technical and energy management services, and a joint-venture between Majid Al Futtaim, the leading shopping mall, retail and leisure pioneer across the Middle East and North Africa, and Veolia, a global leader in optimised resource management, is taking part in this year's WETEX (Water, Energy, Technology and Environment Exhibition). During the three days of WETEX, MAF Dalkia will use the event as a platform to showcase its unique approach to guaranteeing energy savings and other innovative offerings.

Taking place from 21st to 23rd April, 2015, visitors to the 17th Water, WETEX 2015 will also be given the chance to meet with MAF Dalkia's Management and Business Development team as well as attend two special presentations on Guaranteed Savings, which will take place 22nd and 23rd on the stand, learning first-hand how MAF Dalkia's offering takes operational and energy performance from the status of "hidden fuel", where companies haven't considered the financial savings that could come from energy savings to "first fuel", which means, investing these savings into other areas of business.

Taking it to first fuel means – by achieving energy savings we are reducing the amount of money spent in this area on a monthly basis, now companies can invest these savings into other areas of their business.

MAF Dalkia's unique solutions rely on people, process and proprietary tools, one of which is the Energy Saving Center, which for the first time is being relocated to the WETEX stand, showing visitors how this tool allows MAF Dalkia to guarantee building energy savings to its customers.

Alexandre Mussallam, Chief Executive Officer at MAF Dalkia said: "Our presence at WETEX is an invaluable opportunity to showcase our building energy savings capabilities. We are excited to demonstrate how our services and offerings can bring innovative solutions to our clients through the use of tools such as the Energy Saving Center.

He continued "MAF Dalkia is fully committed to Dubai's goal to reduce energy consumption by 30% by 2030, and this is an exciting opportunity to present our unique energy solutions at this exhibition."

Dubai-based MAF Dalkia has approximately 2,000 employees and is leading the way in building energy management, with the Energy Saving Center selected as one of 20 global climate change solutions to be showcased by Veolia at the prestigious 21st Conference of Parties (Cop21), in Paris this December.

In addition to the exciting activities taking place on the stand throughout the exhibition, MAF Dalkia's Director for Business Development and Marketing Director, Francisco Silverio Marques will be presenting a case study on one of its Energy Savings Performance Contracts signed earlier this year with Etihad ESCO. Taking place on the 22nd April at WETEX, Francisco's talk will reveal how MAF Dalkia delivered tailored energy saving solutions across DEWA-owned buildings in Dubai.

"The DEWA contract stands as a perfect case study for the improvements that can be made to other buildings in the region. I am sure that an account of the contract will encourage other companies to follow DEWA's lead and adopt Energy Saving solutions," Silverio Marques explained.
